

1

First, make sure you are connected to the wireless network “MSU Net 3.0.” Not “MSU Net Guest 3.0”

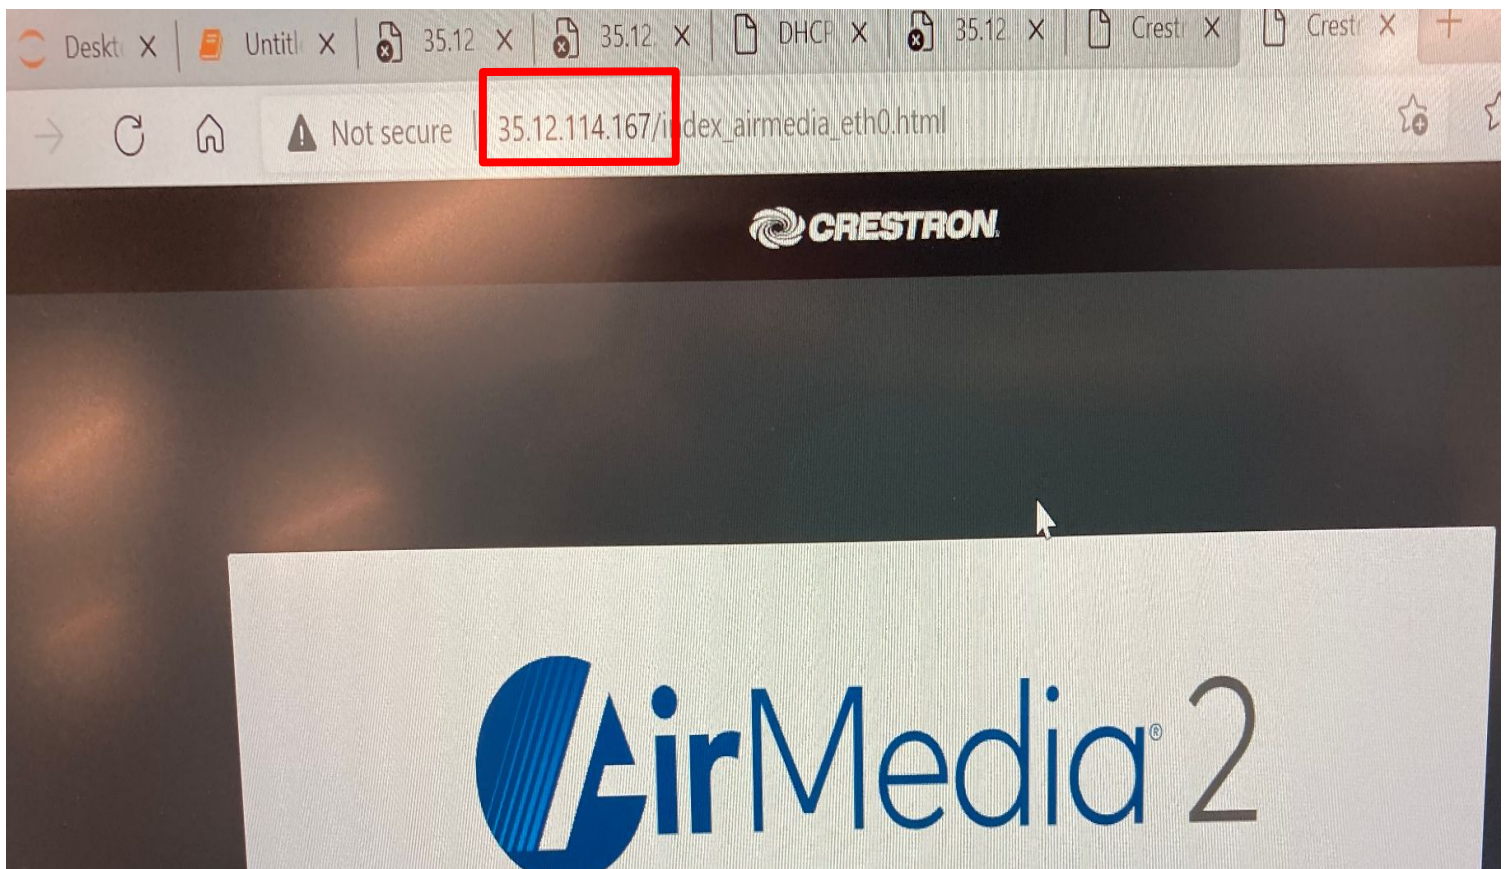

2

In the lower left corner of the screen you should see something that looks like this (but with different numbers). The numbers in the red box are the screen’s IP address. The numbers in the purple box are the pin.

3

Open a web browser (like Chrome, Firefox, Safari, etc.) and type the IP address (red box) from the previous step into the address bar. You don't need to worry about http part, just the numbers.

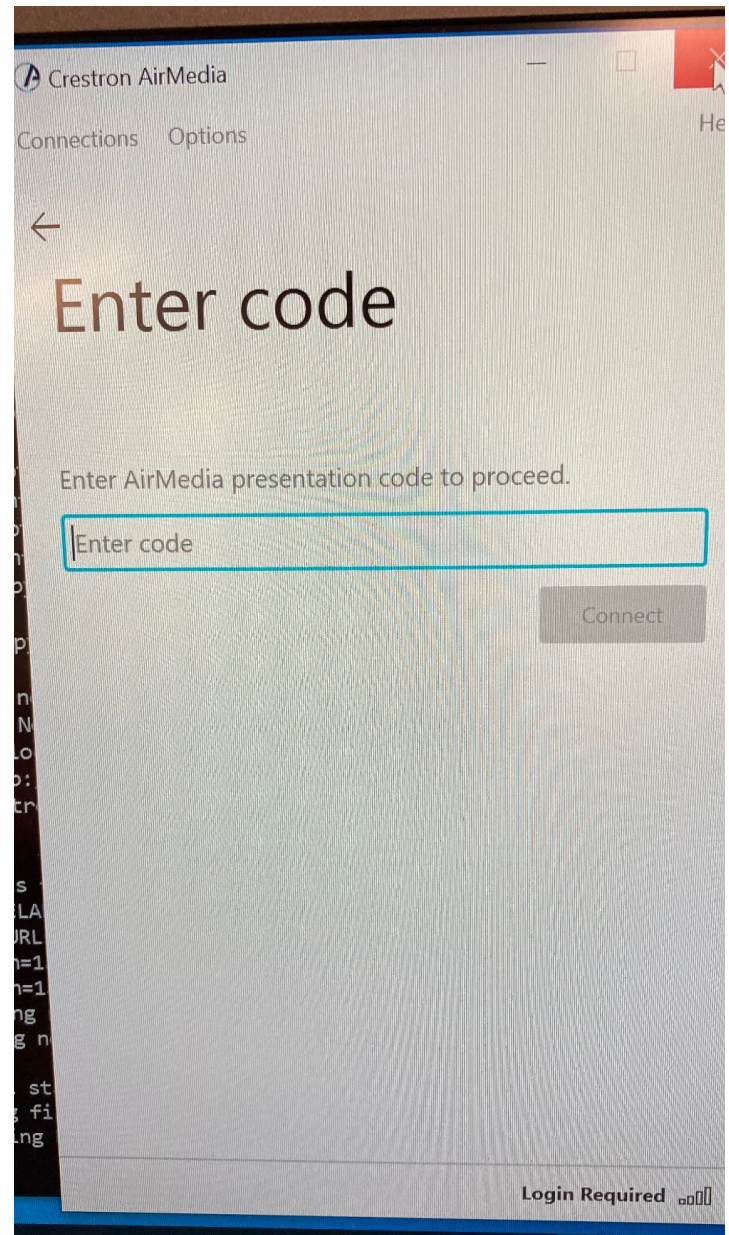

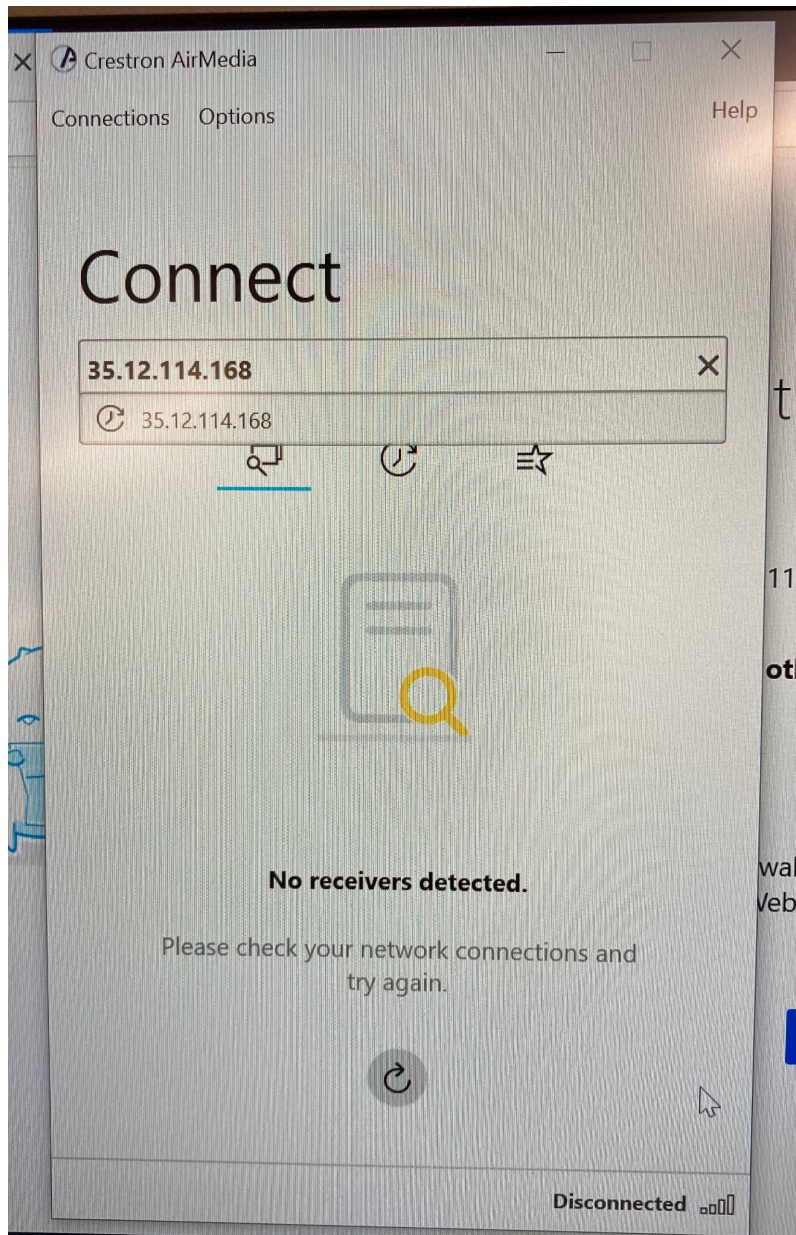

4

It should prompt you to download some software. Download the software and open it. It will likely ask you to update the software. Do that, too.

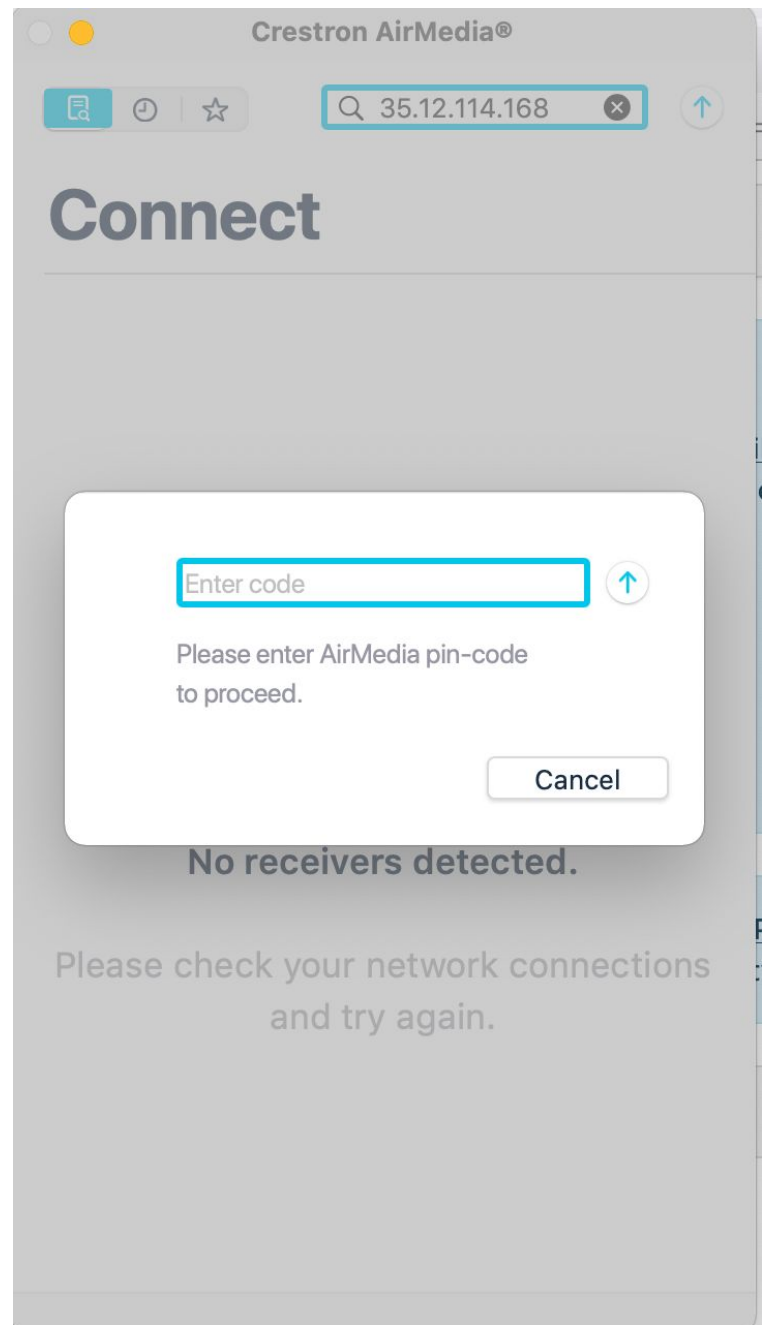

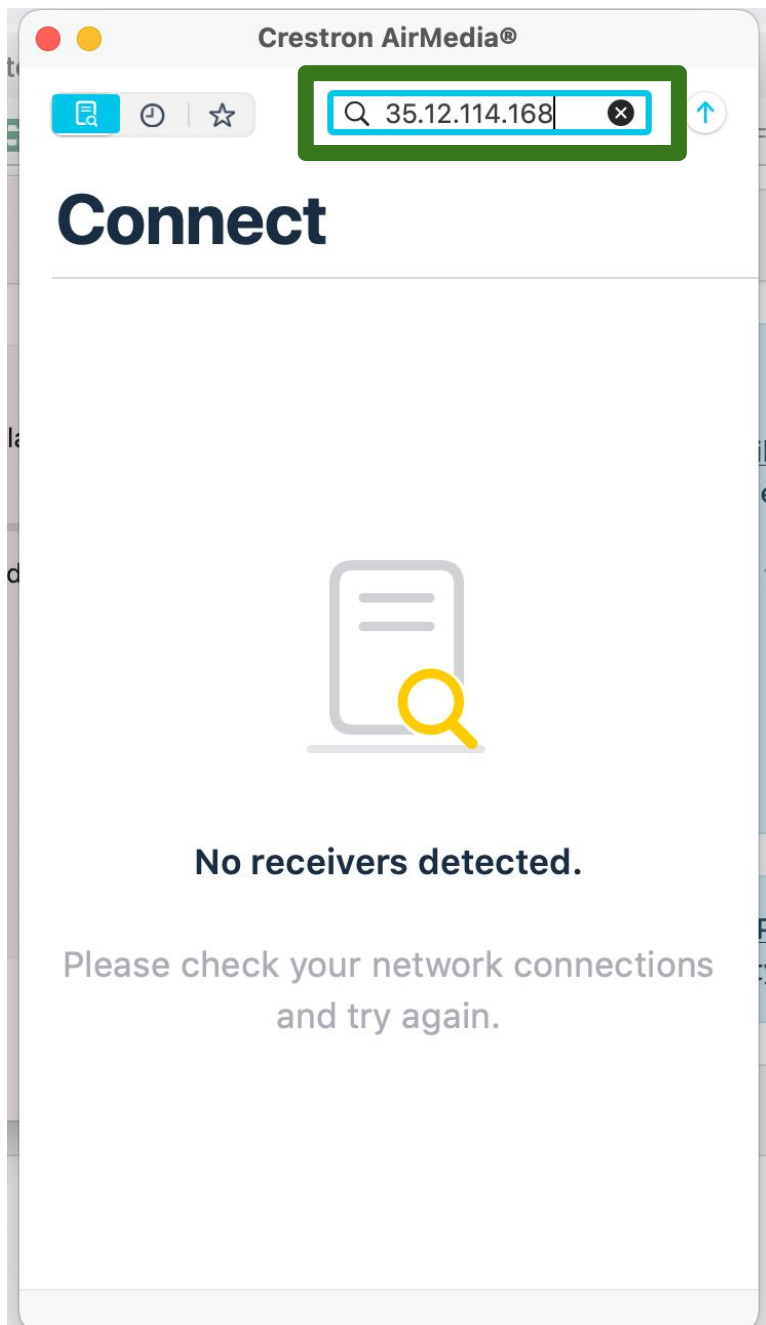

5

FOR PCs: It should either prompt you for the pin right away and connect OR it will give you something like this (below left). Put in the IP address again, and then the pin when it prompts you (below right). And that's it!

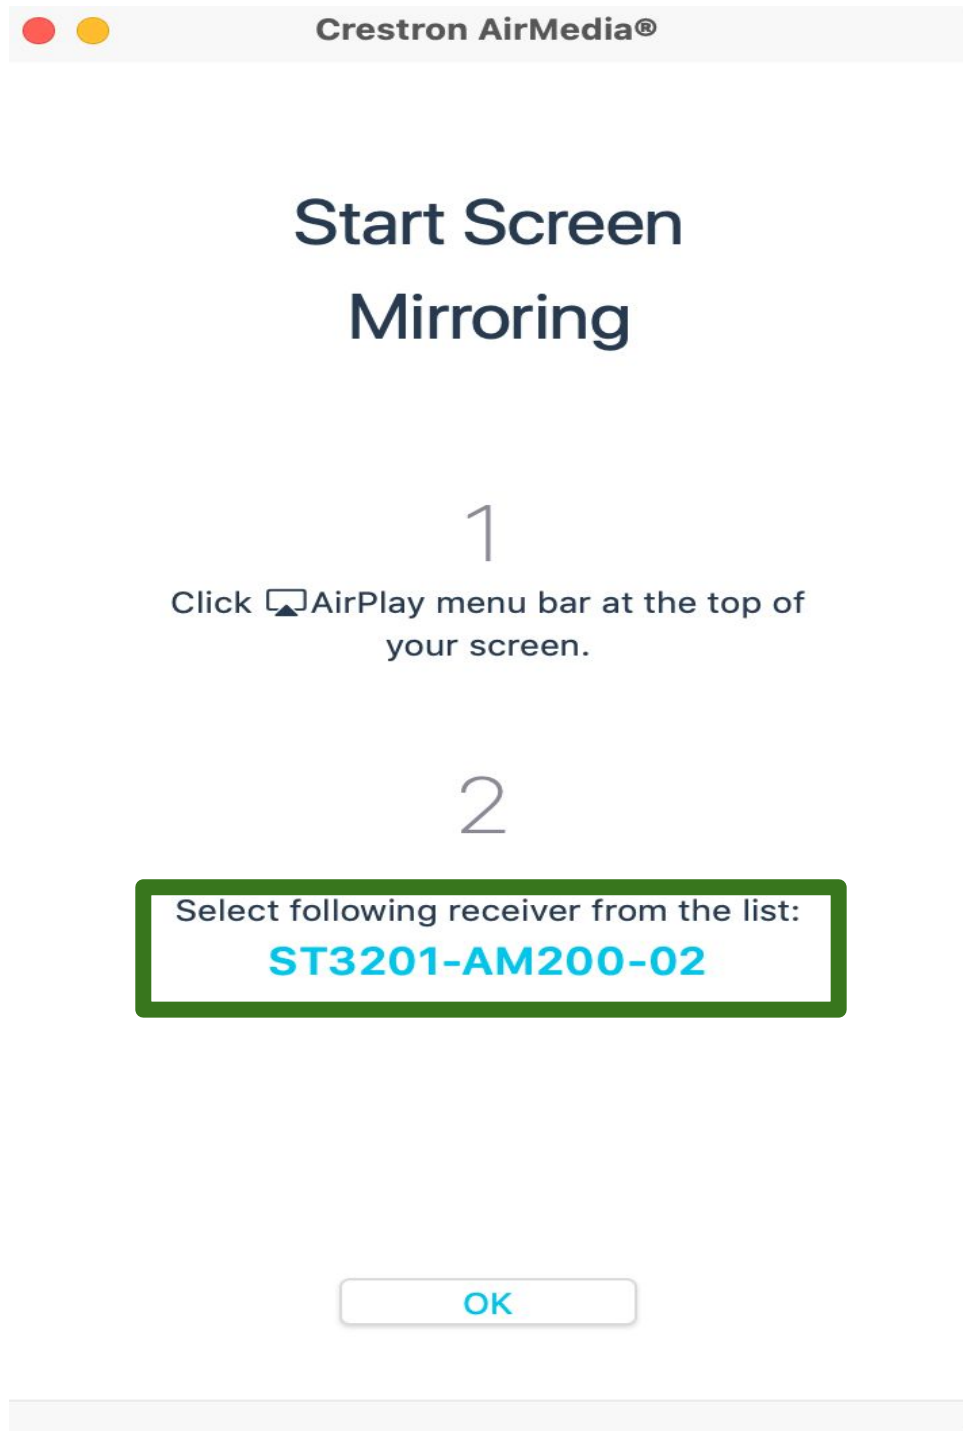

5

6

FOR Macs You should then get a screen that looks like this. Remember the number in the green box (display number).

7

FOR Macs Next, go to System Preferences (which you can find by clicking on the apple in the upper left corner). In System Preferences, click on Displays.

FOR Macs In Displays, find the “Airplay Display” option. There should be a drop down menu. Use the drop down menu to select the number from step 5 (display number). (Note: the numbers in this example don’t match.)

9

FOR Macs Finally, you should be prompted one last time for the pin. Put in the pin and you should be good to go!
